Woodward & Lothrop

New York-WASHINGTON-Paris.

During the heated term store closes at 5 o'clock; Saturdays at 1 o'clock.

Friday is Remnant Day.

Tomorrow's remnant sale will be especially interesting, because of the great variety of the assortments and the littleness of the prices—and because the several classes of goods offered are worthy, and such as are in broad and immediate demand. And for those who can fit their needs to the odds and ends it means a saving of a third, a half or more. Some are soiled or mussed or otherwise imperfect. Some are just odds and ends-or short lengths, or broken sizes, or incomplete lines-and as good as they ever were. All are marked for the quickest possible clearance—and every department in the house is represented.

Friday's Bargains in Wash Goods.

An unusually large and attractive gathering of Wash Goods in suitable lengths for shirt waists shirt waist suits, children's dresses, wrappers Swisses, Lawns, Ginghams, Dimities and other destrable summer wash fabrics, domestic and imported. Some are reduced a half, some more some not so much.

REPLIES TO LETTERS POLITICS IN OHIO

TWEEN THE NATIONS.

How the Suggestion May Be Tested by Two or Three Countries-Interest Manifested.

A great deal of interest has been shown throughout the country in the proposition of Mr. W. S. Shallenberger, second assistant postmaster general, to have an agreement among various nations on a plan by which a letter may be mailed in one country to a person in another and the reply prepaid. This subject has been discussed for many years, but no plan has ever proved to be satisfactory to a majority of the countries in the international postal union. Mr. Shallenberger thinks he has a plan that will be favorably received at the next international congress, which meets in Rome in 1904. Many people regard this proposition as of extreme importance at a time when the United States is extending her foreign trade to every corner of the earth, and they regard the demand for it as significant of the closer relations that are being brought about among the nations.

Interest of the United States.

"No country in the postal union can possibly have a greater interest than the United States in devising a convenient and inexpensive method of mailing a letter in one country to a correspondent in another and at the same time prepaying the reply," said Mr. Shallenberger to a Star reporter today. "Several suggestions looking to this end have been presented in the past ten years. During the administration of Mr. Wanamaker the delegates of the United States to the postal congress of Vi-enna ably presented his views in favor of the adoption of a uniform postage stamp for all countries of the postal union. Such stamps would relieve travelers from the necessity of purchasing new and different stamps in every country visited. They could also be inclosed in letters mailed from one country to another and thus prepay a reply.

"The objections urged in the postal congress of Vienna to the adoption of such stamps were convincing and have not as yet been overcome. The slight difference in the exchange value of such stamps which might be purchased largely in one country and sold at a profit in another was one of the objections urged. Every country in the postal union derives its principal postal revenue from the sale of its own stamps. Many countries look with distrust apon any system which imperils in any way its own revenues.

"The plan I propose seeks to avoid the speculative possibilities inherent in the universal postage stamp, and at the same time fully protects the postal revenue of all other countries of the postal union. Not only so, but it would largely increase the postal revenues of many countries by greatly stimulating first-class correspondence. The large foreign immigration in this country is not only anxious to hear from friends in other countries, but, as a rule, is abundantly able to prepay a reply. It would therefore be reasonable to expect a much larger use of this privilege by the United States than by any other country of the postal union.

Special Postal Union Envelope.

"I propose that each country provide reply, this envelope to have the usual 5cent or 25-centime stamp imprinted thereon, paying outward postage half-ounce weight; to have in addition to this a coupon imprint on the face of the envelope giving to the envelope an exchange stamps of the country of destination at any of its post offices of 25 centimes, or the quivalent thereof, and a redemption value at the international bureau, Berne, Switzerand, when presented by the central office or its equivalent. In order to provide for the postage, the incidental expenses of ex-change and redemption, together with the actual cost of the envelope, it would be necessary to sell these envelopes singly for times, or the equivalent thereof, in other countries. In quantities the actual cost of the envelope would, of course, not justify a charge of 1 cent each, or 5 centimes. The imprint on these envelopes would be in the language of the country of origin; also in language of the postal union. Samples of them, with proper instructions, would be in the hands of every postmaster in the sev eral countries using them. The imprint would declare these envelopes, when relieved of their inclosure and presented to tion, exchangeable for postage stamps of that country of the value of 25 centimes, or the equivalent thereof, not otherwise nego-. The imprint should also declare that this coupon envelope, when presented by the central administration of the country of bureau of the universal postal union, Berne, Switzerland, would be there redeemable in kind or in cash at the rate of 3 centimes, or the equivalent thereof, for each and every envelope. Postmasters could readily identify these envelopes in exchange for stamps, as they would all have been duly accredited by the country of origin, having passed through the mails.

"Aga, the accounting would be such that postmasters would take credit for them in their stamp accounts. The central admin istration of each country could forward, at stated times, all envelopes collected and classified coming from a number of countries of the postal union and forward them to the clearing house for settlement, all balances to be paid in cash at the rate named, 30 centimes each. This additional charge would, it is thought, fully compensate for the cost of exchange and redemp-tion, and perhaps more than compensate. The disposition to reduce postage between distant countries and the desire to facilitate correspondence might, indeed, suggest a charge of 11 cents or 55 centimes for envelopes when sold singly, and yet the faafforded to any correspondent sending with his communication to a friend to a postal money order or post check, pre-paying a reply to the letter, would be worth to him 1 cent or 5 centimes, it is thought.

May Be Tried at Once.

"The trial of this plan need not necessarily await favorable action of the universal postal congress in convention assembled. Two or more countries might agree together to test it. Postmasters could be advised of the several countries having such agreements or conventions between them as they "These envelopes having an exchangeable value of less than half their original cost, and having that exchangeable value only in stamps in the country of destination, and being redeemable only at the international bureau in Berne, or at the central office of administration in the country of origin, could not easily be used as currency or for speculative purposes, would be fully pro-tected by law as government paper against counterfeiting, and by reason of their safety, convenience and inexpensive feawould commend themselves to the class of people who expect to use them promptly in actual correspondence."

> His Ambition to Control in National Democratic Affairs-Republicans

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star. CLEVELAND, Ohio, August 19, 1902. An extra session of the legislature is an annoying thing for any party on the eve of an election. That is the situation which confronts the Ohio republicans. The legislature will meet August 25 in response to the call of Governor Nash. Its work will be to pass a general law for a municipal busy that they would like to keep politics entirely out of the extra session so that legislature there is what is known as a party of "insurgents." Some of them in-sist that before the session is through they will be the regulars and will be in control of the party organization. More likely the different elements will harmonize.

The insurgents cannot afford to join hands with the democrats, and the regulars cannot afford to be dependent on the democratic minority for the passage of legislative acts. That is the situation which makes for harmony among the republicans in the end. While there is something of an alignment on the lines of state admin-istration and anti-state administration as also the Hanna following and the Foraker following, there is not a distinct breach. One senator has as much at stake as the other senator in reaching a common basis of legislation. The present trouble arose over the decision of the supreme court declaring the existing municipal government of Cleveland illegal and unconstitutional. It also ganic acts were brought before it the same decision would be rendered. The court simply put a veto on special legislation of the "ripper" variety for partisan purposes by the passage of special legislative acts. At the same time it pulled the underpinning out of the existing municipalities and left nothing open except the passage of a general municipal code which would stand the test of the court's scru-

Governor Nash some weeks ago called the special session to meet the emergency. Since that time the discussion has been over the new law. The governor is himself a lawyer of very high standing. With the aid of members of the State Bar Association and with the advice and counsel of the party leaders he has been framing a general law, which will be known as the Nash code. In its legal features it is said to be comprehensive and clear and certain to command support. The difference of opinion is over its political provisions. The acute point is whether the police board of the different cities shall be appointed by the governor or not. Governor Nash and those closely associated with him favor this plan Some influential republican leaders

Under the present system of special legsystem, Cleveland does not. Other municipalities are indifferent.

The National Municipal League in a nonpartisan way has been interesting itself in the subject. It is urging municipal home rule without politics. Active party men claim that there can be no municipal rule, politics. The National League favors the complete authority in appointments in a nanner which will enable the responsibility to be brought directly home to it wants this done on a basis of highly de-veloped civil service. The Ohio politicians

To a casual observer it looks as though a compromise which would limit the power of the governor in appointing police boards would be the outcome. The republicans are in control in most of the cities, and authority to the state executive without putting some limitation on his powers.

Tom Johnson Happy.

The happiest man in the state over the muss is Mayor Tom Johnson. He claims that the republicans got into the trouble through their attempt to overturn his administration in Cleveland, and that it was for the purpose of upsetting him that the suit was brought which caused the supreme court to declare the Cleveland mu-nicipal organization invalid.

was bound to come. Yet one of the results the Ohio democracy. Locally he is a dictator, and his machine is a remorseless one. In the state at large he is more conciliatory, for his power is not so firmly estab-lished. The democratic members of the legislature do not accept unqualifiedly his leadership, but most of them are inclined to follow his behests. It is quite likely that cial session will be dictated by Mayor John-

Mayor Tom is pretty liberal with his money in politics whenever he has a personal interest.
Editor McLean might have disputed

Mayor Johnson's growing dictatorship if he had stayed on the ground and fought the fight to a finish. But though he has able and loyal lieutenants he cannot direct a successful campaign from Washington or from Bar Harbor. There are some very re-spectable democrats, such as Col. Kilourne, the former candidate for governor, who do not care particularly for Editor McLean, and yet who will not accept Mayor Johnson as the leader and boss of the party. They are not aggressive, and when they are crowded into a corner and told to take their medicine they will be likely to ready to drop it out of sight, but he and Mr. Brvan have some things in common in their single tax theories. The mayor now seems to be figuring chiefly on controlling the Ohio delegation to the democratic national convention. With his growing control of the party machinery nothing appears to stand in his way, yet there is a lack of confidence in his ability to control so far ahead. To keep his influence he will have to be re-elected mayor of Cleveland. His local machine is a very good one and the mayor's following is compact.

confidence is part of his nature. If the republican factions in Cuyahoga county actually should settle their trouble and develop something more than surface harmony they might defeat Mayer Johnson's re-election. Once in a while the Cleveland republicans have got together and elected the mayor as a preliminary to splitting up more factionally than when they were out of power.

self is quite confident of a second term, but

Republican Harmony.

For the campaign which is to open in October there is a reasonable degree of republican harmony. Since Representative Burton threatened to withdraw from the congressional ticket unless he could have a say in naming the campaign committee there has been less disposition to hang out the family linen in public. Mr. Burton got a committee of his own and he and his friends are satisfied. Senator Hanna also is working for harmony. His rooms in the Perry-Payne build ing are open every day to a stream of local workers. He tells them that he gave up his vacation after a long session of Congress in order to stay at home and help promote harmony, and he urges them to get over their eternal petty squabbles. His presence is having a good effect. The Cleveland republicans outside of their factional bickerings are well pleased with their senator. It is evident from talking with them that he has no intention of being pushed aside in national politics. Whatever may have been his feelings immediately after the death of President McKinley and whatever desire he then may have felt to limit his political activities to his senatorial duties these feelings have been softened by time. It is the expectation of all of Senator Hanna's friends that he will keep to the front in national politics, and they resent any suggestion of his retirement. As to brushing him aside, that is too much of a task to be undertaken, in the view of his closest associates. Senator Hanna him-self is more gratified over his part in seself is more gratified over his part in se-curing the passage of the Panama canal bill than over anything in his public life. It is part of the current talk that one reason for harmonizing all the republican party's actions is to clear the way for the nomination of Myron T. Herrick, banker and business man, for governor next year. Colonel Herrick was President McKinley's closest friend. Locally, usually he has stood with Senator Hanna, but always in a conciliatory attitude, so that he is ac-and it is stated that such a mission is still open to him. But the talk of the governor-ship may change his willingness to go abroad. He would make a strong candidate, and there would be no doubt of his election CHARLES M. PEPPER.

AMENDED RETURNS. Banks Must Make Them or Be As-

Commissioner Yerkes of the internal revenue bureau has issued a circular letter to collectors directing them to report the names of banks which have not made complete amended returns for the year ended fusal to make proper returns collectors will report them for assessment. On December 31, 1901, the commissioner ruled that under section 2 of the act of June 13, 1898, bankers were required to return for taxation all moneys used by them in carrying on their business, and that banks in mak-ing their returns should include therein their capital, surplus and undivided profits, or other profits and loss account, except so much thereof as may be actually necessary and has been set apart to meet ascer-tained liabilities and losses or to pay dividends actually declared by the directors of the banks, to pay taxes, or to pay fixed an-expenses.

Under this ruling a large number of banks and institutions doing a banking business, which had already made their returns for which had already made their returns for the year ending June 30, 1902, were re-quired to, and did make, amended returns, including their undivided profits of their profit and loss account and additional as-sessments were made against them. In sessments were made against them. In some instances these assessments were paid, but in a large majority of cases the returns were made under protest, and claims for abatement were filed. Temporary action on these claims was suspended pending a decision of the court in the case. This decision recently having been made, sustaining the commissioner's ruling, the bureau will reject claims for abatement which have been filed and collectors will be inhave been filed and collectors will be in-

Nobody wants a political campaign till well into October. People generally are so

The responsibility, therefore, is entirely with them, and it is fortunate that the majority is large enough to allow a wide latitude of opinion. In the
